Page 5: Troubleshooting

- is it that you're tired
- is it that they said that crazy thing on the news again
- is it financial
- is it your mother's fault
- is it the air quality—wait—if you are having trouble breathing, solve before proceeding
- is it fascism
- is it ambient noise
- is it your internet connection
- is it your gender your sex your skin your name
- is it all in your head (it's probably all in your head)
- is the inside of the mechanism filled with dust
- is it that the machine is not actually designed for you

If your problem is related to any of the above, close your eyes.
Adjust the focus on your mind-lens.
Picture yourself floating in the icy waters of the Pacific Ocean. Take on for yourself the body of an octopus.

If you are soft, if you have several hearts, if you move like water itself, if you can change your colors, if your very textures you can change, if you can be like rock, like sand, like coral, then your webcam is functioning correctly.

Kelp-colored, some days, you move freely down there.

You live only one year, but what a year.
